

1. A ship, whose cargo is food for African territories, is sailing from the port of Hamburg to Lagos.
2. The master is on the command bridge and he is looking at the radar.
3. Suddenly, he realizes that at the forward portside there is a strange floating object. It looks like a big piece of tree.
4. After he realizes that there is a strange noise coming from the bottom of the ship. and the ship starts to go adrift.
5. The chief engineer commands to raise the alarm because the propeller under the keel doesn't work anymore and it does not respond to the commands.
6. The master orders to stop the engines and to lift the anchor in order to check about the problem. He orders the divers to stand by to control the conditions of the propeller.
7. The damage is under control and repaired, so the ship can continue the course.